

ABSTRACT

Globalization is impacting on people's lives. Globalization is inevitable. As a consequence of technological advances, industry and science also can not be controlled. Prudent to anticipate the impact of globalization is selective for the culture that does not fit with our culture. Globalization led to significant changes in the influence of moral values and our lifestyle, with globalization unpreparedness would result in new problems in this life.

Changes in the values of community life referred to as psychosocial changes. These changes can be seen that there are symptoms in the community, among other things: justify any means to achieve his personal ambition; family ties become brittle, lifestyle of the people tend to individual, materialistic and secular.

This change will make the load or mental pressure in some people who are not ready to face the globalization era. Changes in the values of life resulted in the loss of moral and religious values that make some people get confused. The confusion has led to shock people. Shock experienced by the soul not only teenagers but also adults. In this mental shock can also lead to a change in outlook on life, faith and religious beliefs.

Religious conversion was influenced by many factors, among others, the spirit of conflict, tension feeling, tradition, religion, and emotion, all which can not be separated in order to search for religious truth. In this study the authors used the approach of Psychology of Religion to dig up information that they experienced, then, interviews, observation, the data obtained were analyzed by the authors in the field of data analysis.

Results showed that religious conversion is happening in the Village Summersari come from a background of economic levels of society that the majority of high school educated, in addition to religious conversion is gradual. Before the religious conversion occurred, appeared indifference to religion which he believed.

Mass conflict which is believed to occur because of religion can not provide a solution to his problems. Other conflict is inner conflict, the discrepancy between hope and reality. The experience of religious conversion made inner calm and confidence against the new religion.
