

CHAPTER III

RESEARCH METHODS

The research method can be interpreted as a process, principles and procedures used to solve a problem of a research. In completing this study the authors using the following research method:

A. Type of Research

The type of this research is a Normative Legal Research. Normative legal Research is a research which uses the law as foundation of norm. This means that this research is based on the library research focusing on reading and analyzing of the primary and secondary materials.

B. Type of Approach

In normative legal research, the researcher should use statute approach and case approach because in this approach the researcher examined various rules of law as well as its central theme as focus of research. Case Approach aims at studying the application of norms or rules of law regarding the detention of supply of imported beef in cartel practice.

C. Type of Data

The research used primary and secondary data obtained from field research through observation and interview. Then secondary data were legal material in the form of all the publications of the law which are not official documents, publications about the law include text books, dictionaries law, legal journals relating to the Prohibition of Monopolistic

Practices and Unfair Business Competition, especially regarding the agreements that are prohibited, namely Cartel .

D. Data Collection

The data were collected by selecting research materials, and then performing the classification according to the classification of research materials and compiling the results of these studies in a systematic and logical

E. Data Analysis

Materials obtained through research activities are analyzed in prescriptive nature of the analysis that intended to provide arguments or results of research that has been done. This argument was carried out by the researcher to provide prescriptions or judgments about right or wrong of the facts or legal events of the research that is closely related to the Prohibition of Monopolistic Practices and Unfair Business Competition, especially regarding the cartel.