ABSTRACT

This study aims to empirically examine the effect of compensation and work environment on the performance of the GTY (Permanent Teachers Foundation) in the Gamping District. The subjects in this study were GTY teachers who taught at Muhammadiyah Elementary School in Gamping District for a minimum of 3 years. In this study a sample of 60 respondents was selected using the purposive sampling method. Data obtained was then processed using multiple linear regression analysis with SPSS 25.0 software.

Based on the analysis that has been done, the results show that the work environment variable has a significant negative effect on turnover intention and the informal relationship variable at work has a significant positive effect on turnover intention. While the leadership style variable does not have a significant positive effect on turnover intention.
